With L.E.K. Consulting

Some problems have obvious solutions. . .

Whether large or small, global or local, mature or emerging, companies worldwide rely on consulting firms to help them address their most critical challenges and opportunities.

Business leaders face a myriad of issues, some of which are urgent but have straight-forward solutions. Others are more complex but are not necessarily critical to the company's long-term success.

Then there are the challenges that seem intractable, require solutions that are completely counter-intuitive, or are so crucial that they demand the greatest certainty possible.

. . . we deal with the ones that don't

L.E.K. Consulting is a global strategy consulting firm that addresses the most complex commercial issues for some of the world's most successful companies.

Our teams combine deep industry expertise and sophisticated analysis to create game-changing insights and practical solutions that deliver real impact.

Clients come to us time and again because we have proven to be an insightful expert and a trusted partner. We are uncompromising in our approach to helping them consistently make better decisions, deliver improved business performance and create greater shareholder returns.

What We Do

L.E.K. advises the world's largest private and public sector organisations, private equity firms, and smaller, more entrepreneurial businesses on their most complex commercial challenges. Backed by more than 1,000 professionals located across five continents, our worldwide presence positions us for continued growth.

L.E.K.'s portfolio of services includes Strategy, Mergers & Acquisitions (M&A), Operations and Marketing & Sales. We have expertise in a wide range of industries, including healthcare and life sciences, energy, industrials, retail & consumer products, financial services and transportation.

Clients rely on us to define the optimal solutions for their challenges and opportunities by drawing on our core capabilities of research, benchmarking, modelling, analysis and strategy development. Our teams consistently produce results that exceed client expectations, enabling them to make critical decisions with greater certainty.

The results we achieve, and how we achieve them, explain why more than 90 percent of our engagements originate from previous clients or referrals.

What We Look For

Our dynamic, fast-paced work environment puts a premium on teamwork, communication, flexibility, and creative thinking. We don't use a rigid checklist; instead, we look for a combination of attributes that provide a solid foundation for a successful consulting career at L.E.K.

You will possess a sense of intellectual curiosity that will inspire you to develop a deep understanding of any situation, and to generate innovative answers to complex questions. Thinking in logical, structured ways comes naturally to you, but you'll also have the creativity to look beyond the obvious.

We recruit from a wide range of disciplines in both arts and sciences, and don't require existing technical skills - so bring us your strong desire to learn and we'll provide the rest.

Our people work together in teams, so we value collaboration and communication skills. Teams benefit from different outlooks and different skills - you'll be valued for your own particular strengths.

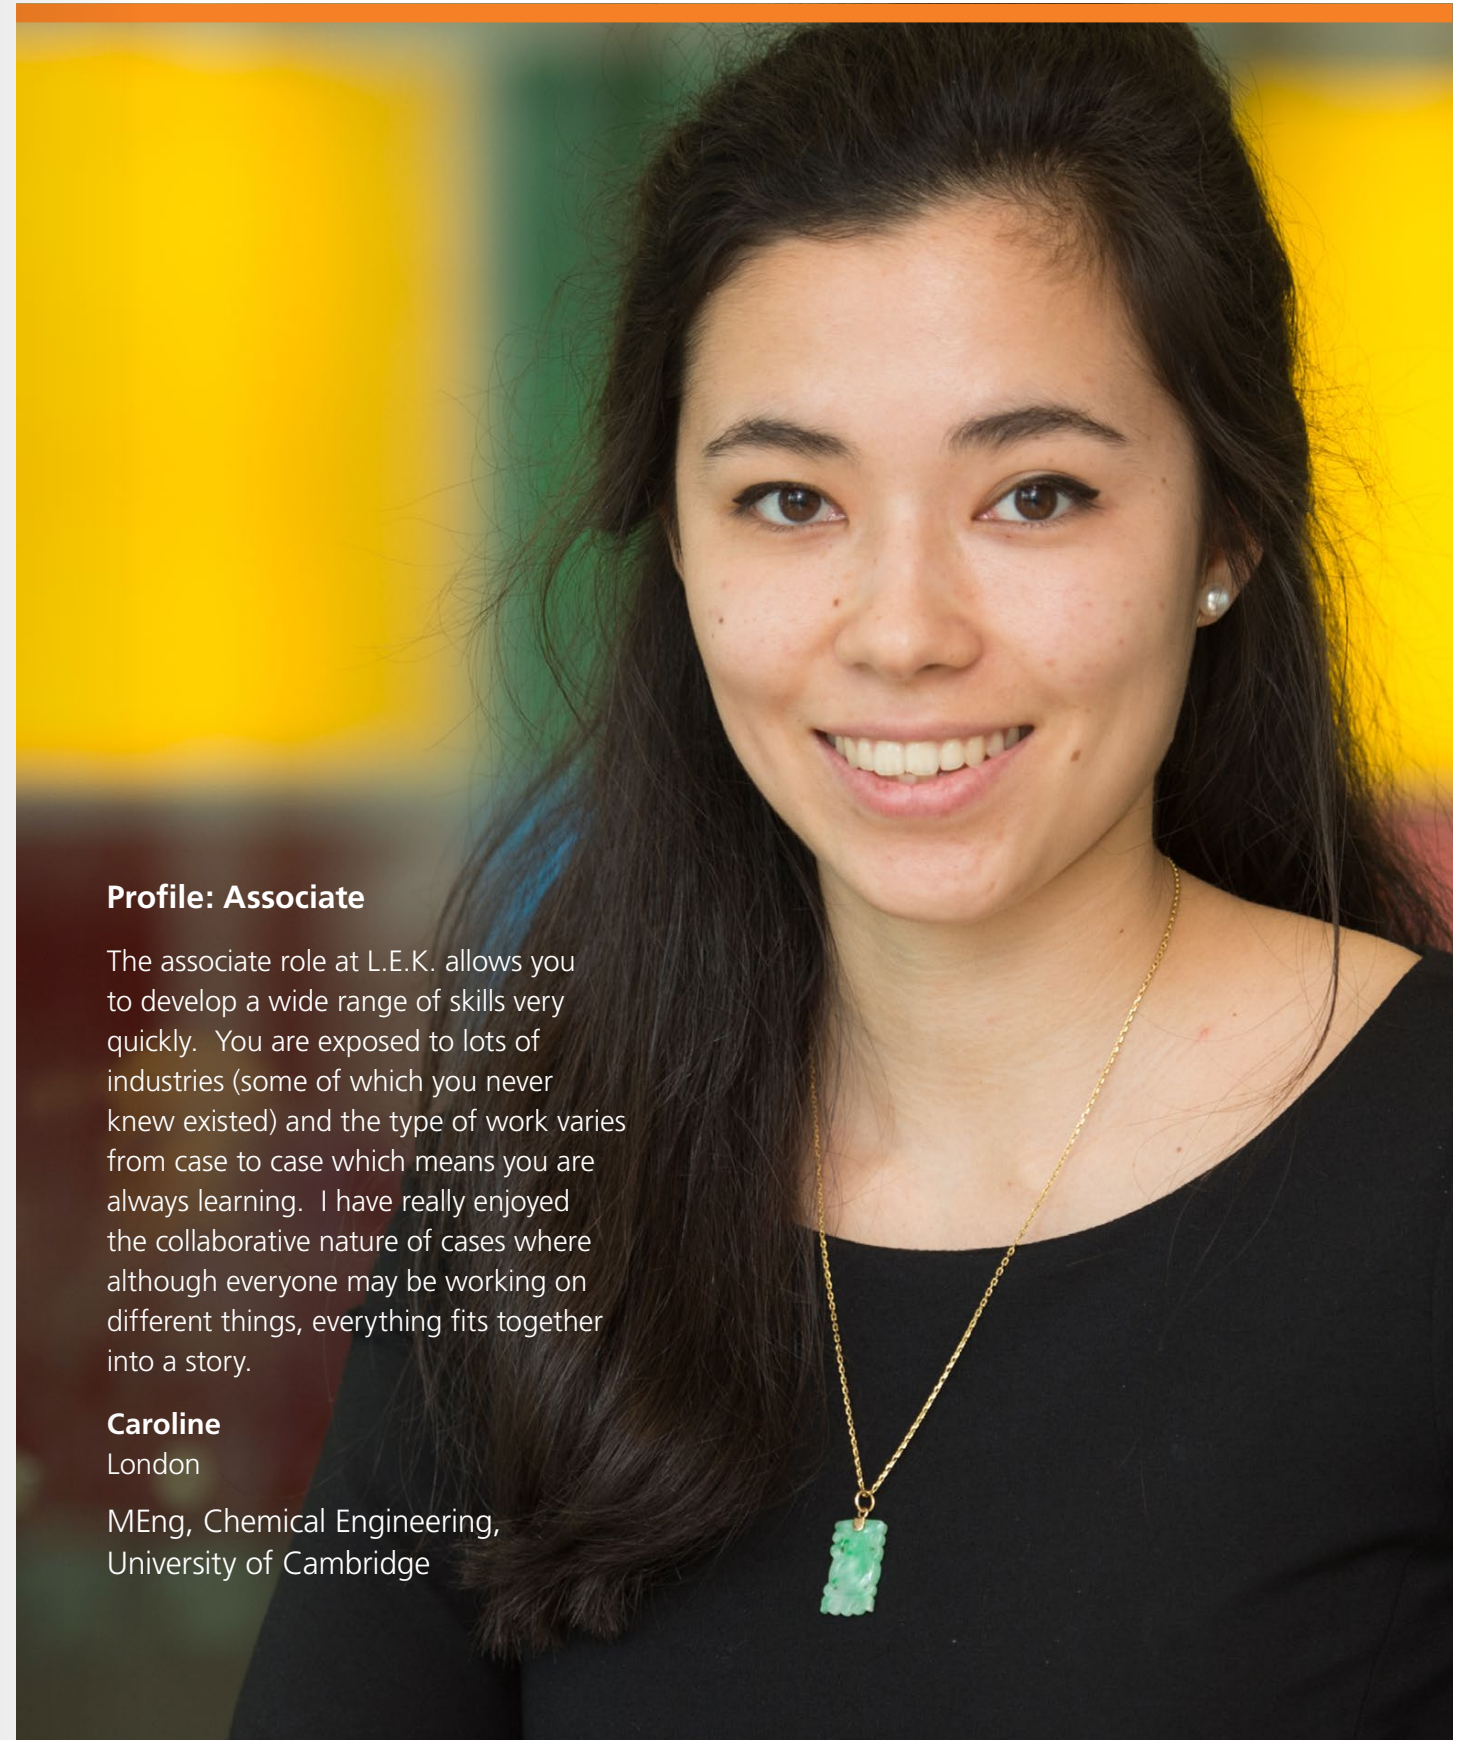

Finally, we look for those who will make an impact by being proactive and taking ownership of their work with energy and enthusiasm.

Profile: Associate

The associate role at L.E.K. allows you to develop a wide range of skills very quickly. You are exposed to lots of industries (some of which you never knew existed) and the type of work varies from case to case which means you are always learning. I have really enjoyed the collaborative nature of cases where although everyone may be working on different things, everything fits together into a story.

The L.E.K. Associate

For recent university graduates, L.E.K. offers the broadest business experience and most analytical skillset to prepare you for any future opportunity in business school, industry, non-profits and investment firms. MDs and PhDs with appropriate backgrounds can join us on a dedicated Life Sciences Specialist pathway, which recognises the technical expertise that they bring to the firm. Associates are crucial to the success of L.E.K. project teams. They are responsible for the comprehensive research, modelling and analysis that form the basis of each engagement. Under the guidance of senior team members, Associates collect data on markets, competitors and customers, and perform the first stage of in-depth strategic and financial analysis. This enables the team as a whole to evaluate trends, develop conclusions and prepare practical recommendations.

As they gain experience, Associates see their role expand and they become Associates Consultant after two years. At this stage, they assume a more active managerial role in overseeing the progress of a project and the work of new Associates. Career progression typically takes one of two paths: internal promotion is a consideration for many Associates, while others choose to move on to top international graduate schools or highly sought-after positions in a wide range of industries.

Case study: An angel investor funding a new start-up asked L.E.K. to assess the opportunity to deliver affordable housing through offsite manufacture.

L.E.K. provided a strategy for short-term growth through which the company could build a sustainable business model. L.E.K. next developed a strategic roadmap for the next five years, through which the start-up achieved profitability, and the client redeemed its original investment.

Profile: Associate Consultant

My career at L.E.K. started with an internship. From the beginning, the work has been challenging and interesting and there have been plenty of opportunities for me to step up to the plate. I had the chance to dive into multiple fields, from automotive components and debt collection to diagnostic imaging and haemodialysis equipment – this variety is what I like about my work here. Even more important for me when I joined L.E.K. was the team I work with, a set of very unique and sharp-minded people who are more than mere colleagues to me.

Case study: Validating the growth potential of a high-end glass manufacturer.

L.E.K. was asked to validate an investment thesis as part of a potential acquisition in the glass bottle market. To assess the glass market, the project team analysed the world of wines and spirits and other end markets, examining their underlying dynamics (addressable market and sizing, key market drivers and forecasts, etc). We also analysed the customer environment by evaluating the purchasing process and key purchasing criteria, and assessed the competitive intensity and the relative quality of the target's positioning. The client decided to proceed with the acquisition and later re-engaged L.E.K. to help revamp the company's marketing strategy.

Case study: Supporting the Global Carbon Capture and Storage Institute in taking a leading role to reduce greenhouse gas emissions internationally.

The Global Carbon Capture and Storage Institute (GCCSI) selected L.E.K. to explore the key global challenges and opportunities for carbon capture and storage (CCS). Using industry research and proprietary analysis, L.E.K. recommended an “Ideal Portfolio” of CCS projects with the greatest opportunity to drive large-scale CCS deployment by 2020.

Profile: Consultant

I have been working at L.E.K. for almost 6 years and have been promoted few months ago to Senior Consultant which is really exciting because I am now responsible for managing case teams. My responsibilities include overseeing the Associates in my team and managing the day-to-day case process. I liaise directly with senior members of the project team and have regular interactions with the client. I learn new things every day thanks to the diversity of projects I work on, ranging from different focuses and challenges to new industries and case teams. My regular performance reviews and our adapted training program help me to continually progress. However, L.E.K. is not just about work. I also enjoy spending time outside of working hours with my colleagues who are both smart and funny.

The L.E.K. Consultant

Recent MBA graduates will find that L.E.K. offers superior, diversified business training that prepares them for leadership and problem solving in any business organisation. You will see more business situations and solve more issues than your peers at other firms. L.E.K. recruits one Consultant for every two Associates, meaning Consultants assume immediate managerial responsibility, providing daily direction to their Associate teams to ensure exceptional research and analysis. They are expected to contribute significant thought leadership and oversee complex projects, breaking issues into discrete work modules.

Consultants are also responsible for turning analysis into actionable recommendations for the client, helping senior management adopt and implement the recommended strategy, including the challenging task of building consensus and commitment to the plan. In addition to case responsibilities, Consultants contribute to the management of the firm by participating in professional development for Associates, client business development, and recruiting new staff. Promotion to Director often occurs within two years, with consideration for promotion to Partner after an additional three to five years.

Profile: Manager

I began my career at L.E.K. as an associate in the Life Sciences practice straight after my PhD. After a few years and thanks to L.E.K.'s support, I decided to pursue an MBA. After graduating, I came back to L.E.K. as consultant and have since then been promoted manager. As a manager, I take responsibility for understanding the key issues affecting each client and guide my teams to identify the critical path to finding the right solution. Across cases, I make sure that each of my team members is given the opportunity to develop to his/her full potential. Throughout my career, I have enjoyed the constant opportunity to keep solving challenging problems, while developing a full set of analytical, commercial, strategic and leadership skills.

The L.E.K. Experience

At L.E.K., we develop professional skills and enhance performance through every stage of your career. You will work alongside unique but like-minded peers, contribute almost immediately to solving critical business challenges, and significantly expand your business knowledge and skills. Our open culture translates into frequent access to the firm's leaders. On projects, Partners spend more than 70 percent of their time working with Consultants and Associates, helping them to deliver their maximum impact.

New employees are assigned a senior-level mentor, who provides guidance on day-to-day project challenges and career decisions – offering advice and feedback on how to enhance consulting and management skills. In addition to professional guidance, mentors also ensure that each individual's experience is both enjoyable and rewarding.

Formal training begins immediately, with an orientation programme that introduces you to the firm and reviews the tools necessary to make a significant contribution on your first consulting project.

We supplement on-the-job learning with regular training throughout your L.E.K. career, covering detailed technical issues and analytical techniques, as well as general business and management topics. We believe in giving all our people the skills to use today's leading-edge analytical software so that data analytics can sit at the heart of every case team. These courses help our professionals remain at the forefront of strategic thinking and maintain consistently high standards in our client work.

L.E.K. is committed to creating a positive work experience. We have a variety of policies that are designed to help our staff enjoy sustainable careers, and make time for those things that replenish and fulfill them. Our Staff Council meets regularly to provide an open forum for suggestions about the small improvements to office life that can make a big difference. A dedicated committee runs regular social activities, which alongside our everyday culture of collaboration and support, enable our staff to develop a strong sense of camaraderie and long-term professional relationships.

International Exposure

L.E.K. offers variety and opportunity beyond just the types of projects we conduct and the industries we serve. We also encourage staff to participate in our swap programme, with a six-month assignment to one of our offices in the Americas, Asia-Pacific or Europe. This experience offers a valuable grounding in the dynamics of international business and facilitates a deep understanding of L.E.K.'s culture and approach from a global perspective. The majority of L.E.K. engagements have an international component and many of our people have the opportunity to work on projects around the world.

Diversity & Inclusion

L.E.K. is committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive workplace in which all employees are respected and valued. Our workforce is diverse, representing a range of professional and personal backgrounds and more than 30 nationalities. We are dedicated to providing a workplace that enables all employees to fulfil their potential. The diversity among L.E.K. employees makes the firm a better place to work and allows us to meet the needs of our clients at the highest level.

Social impact

As a multinational organization serving companies all over the world, we recognize the role that we can play in developing and investing in local communities. And as an employer, we also appreciate the importance of setting internal policies and goals that are socially responsible. Our Social Responsibility Program encompasses a wide range of activities, from pro bono consulting to volunteer support for charitable organizations. For instance, L.E.K. Paris is helping Les Restos du Coeur on various national and local projects.

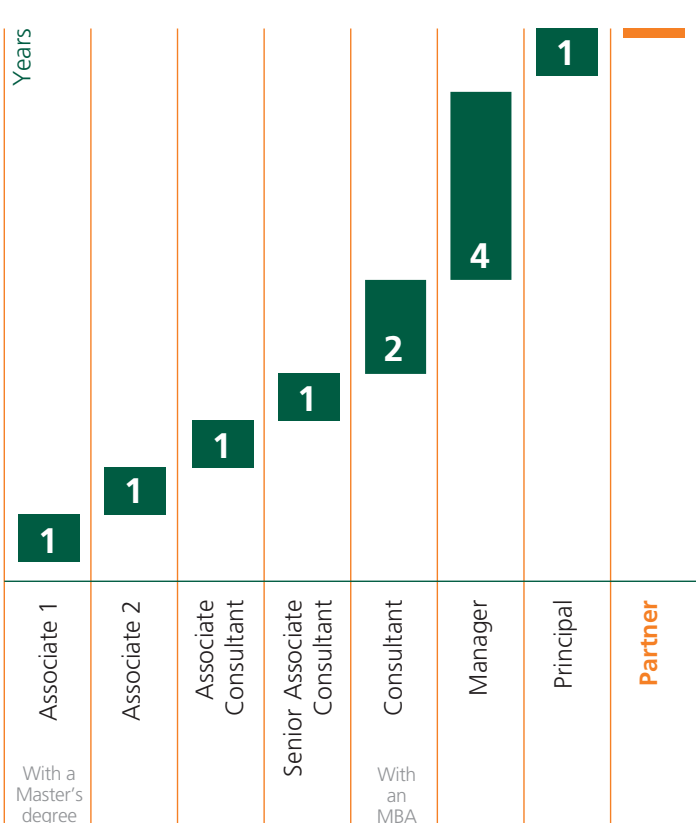

Case study: Transforming a mid-tier global pharma into an industry leader with a diverse portfolio through an ambitious growth and acquisition plan

Our client approached L.E.K. with an impending revenue ‘cliff’ due to loss of patent exclusivity on a number of key products. In fewer than 18 months, L.E.K. worked to transform the client into an industry leader with a diverse product pipeline, solid product portfolio and a clear vision for the future.

Case study: Defining an Offshore wind strategy

L.E.K. was engaged to define a go-to-market strategy and roadmap to address the booming offshore wind market. The project involved assessing market potential to identify the most promising segments, mapping the main stakeholders / routes to market and conducting a thorough ‘Voice of Customer’ programme to understand utilities’ needs and requirements. Based on the feedback, we developed an innovative and comprehensive market entry strategy that would enable rapid implementation as well as quickly gain momentum (turbine technology, financial scheme, commissioning, aftersales services, etc.). Our work included definition of the key technical specifications and technological outline for the new wind turbine generator including turbine size, drive train technology, pitch control type, redundancies and other technical improvements to address unmet needs identified during the ‘Voice of Customer’ stage. This enabled the client to have a head start.

L.E.K. Career path

Alumni & Business School Networks

L.E.K. alumni have advanced their careers through prominent positions in the corporate, investment, non-profit and government sectors, where they apply the skills they developed at L.E.K. to improve the performance of other organisations. We are committed to building lifelong relationships with our alumni through a dedicated Alumni Network, which includes an alumni website, newsletters and invitations to L.E.K. networking events. The friendships and professional relationships fostered while working at L.E.K. last for many years and serve alumni well as they pursue their careers.

L.E.K. has established relationships with premier universities around the world, building a reputation for developing strong graduate school candidates. Many of our Associates go on to top-tier business and other programmes – such as INSEAD, London Business School, Harvard, Stanford, University of Chicago, Wharton and Kellogg – testifying to the excellence of our training and on-the-job experience.

Profile: Alumni

I started my career at L.E.K. Consulting in Paris after graduating from ESSEC business school. The projects I worked on for almost eight years at L.E.K. were strategic and high profile, short time-framed and on multiple industries. They helped me develop my technical and analytical skills as well as my management competencies. I had the opportunity to fulfill my learning aspirations by completing an MBA at INSEAD and by working for various L.E.K. offices worldwide, including an office swap in Sydney, Australia.

L.E.K. taught me to reach the best solution for each situation by relying on structured, fact-based insights. My years at L.E.K. allowed me to build an extensive base of technical and sector knowledge, and also gave me valuable experience in leading teams and managing people, skills which are key in my current position.
